

Learning Specialist

Boston University Academy

Boston University Academy is seeking a Learning Specialist serving students in grades 9-12. The position begins in August 2026 and is a 80% time, 10-month role. The Learning Specialist will work as part of a four-person Student Support Team. The primary responsibilities will be: meeting one-on-one to support students with executive functioning and a variety of learning styles; reviewing and processing psycho-educational testing and creating student learning profiles; making recommendations to families about additional support (e.g. testing, tutoring, or outside professional support); maintaining the list of students with school-approved accommodations and sharing with faculty on a need-to-know basis; partnering with BU's Disability & Access Services office on accommodations for BUA students in BU classes; submitting and supporting applications to the College Board and other testing organizations for testing accommodations; working closely with teachers to determine student needs and offer advice about ways teachers can best support the students; leading professional development for faculty around learning disabilities and learning strategies. The Learning Specialist reports to the Associate Head of School. The salary range for this position is $60,000-$83,000 depending on experience.

A master's degree in special education, educational psychology, or a related field and at least three years of experience in a similar role are preferred. For all positions, we look for candidates who enjoy working with colleagues in a collaborative environment, who are flexible and creative, who will fully engage in the life of the school, and who are committed to fostering an inclusive and equitable community.

As the only high school in New England that is part of a major research university, Boston University Academy (BUA) offers students who love learning both a traditional, caring independent school experience and access to a broad range of university courses. In the eleventh and twelfth grades, students follow their passions by regularly completing up to twelve courses from Boston University's undergraduate curriculum. The school's 225 students are curious, capable, and kind. They come from 45 cities and towns in the Greater Boston area. 54% of students identify as students of color. 27% of students are on financial aid — a reflection of BUA's commitment to equity and access.

Boston University's generous benefits package includes health, dental, life insurance, and paid time off. Full-time employees are also eligible for tuition remission for graduate work at Boston University, and remission extends to dependents as well. For more details on benefits, please refer to the Boston University benefits page here.

To apply, please send a resume, list of references (if available), and cover letter addressed to Dr. Rosemary White, Associate Head of School, at buacareers@bu.edu.
